Descripción

Tanto como una biografía, este libro es el testimonio de una profunda amistad : la que unió a su autora, Margaret Buber-Neumann, con Milena Jesenská, a quien conoció en 1940 en el campo de concentración de Ravensbrück. Fue allí, en el centro de un horror sin límites, donde las dos mujeres aliviaron su dolor con mutuas confidencias que más adelante habrían de constituir la fuente principal de este libro, escrito a instancias de la propia Milena. Al hilo, pues, del recuerdo, se suceden aquí, con entrañable inmediatez, los múltiples episodios de la fascinante vida de Milena : su infancia en Praga, su agitada adolescencia, sus dos matrimonios, su residencia en Viena, su intensa relación con Franz Kafka, su carrera como periodista y traductora, sus arriesgadas actividades bajo el terror nazi y, finalmente, su prisión y su muerte en el campo de concentración.

Un recorrido desesperado dentro del bullicioso marco de la Europa central de entreguerras. Una biografía inevitablemente apasionada de una mujer incontenible sobre la que Kafka escribió : «...Es un fuego vivo como yo jamás había visto».
